THE RABBIT'S CARROTS

Today was a wonderful day for the rabbits in Irama's field. All the rabbits were very excited to harvest their carrots. The rabbits were whistling with joy because they found the carrots growing so well.

However, in the shadiest garden, it turned out that there was a rabbit that had not yet gotten its carrots. He was sad and sat pensively looking at his empty basket.

His name was Bonbon, the smartest rabbit in Irama's field.

Bonbon was getting sad. He went to his house and took the book "The Magic Carrots". He read every page very carefully. Finally, Bonbon forgot one thing! It turned out that the correct way to harvest carrots is to dig them up, not pull them out.

The next day, Bonbon returned to his garden with a shovel and started digging.

"Wow! The book is true!" Bonbon was surprised to see the carrots of his harvest. Clara, Daisy, Bobi, and Ang who happened to come to see him, had the same reaction too.

Since then, all the rabbits in Irama's field learned how to harvest carrots from Bonbon. Bonbon began to share his knowledge more generously. He wanted the rabbits in Irama's field to get the big, juicy carrots like he did. Good job Bonbon!
